

HARTMAN SHAFI SIXTY FEET HIGH

Most Costly Federal Monument Erected in South.

TAFT WILL UNVEIL MEMORIAL

Granite Shaft to Pennsylvanians Who Fought Around Petersburg Ready for Ceremonies on May 19. Sketch of Military Career of Men Whose Deeds It Commemorates.

Petersburg, Va., May 8.—Rising sixty feet in the air and casting its shadow over the hallowed ground around Fort Mahone, the Hartman monument, to be unveiled by President Taft on May 19, is one of the most elaborate, imposing, and expensive ever erected in Southern territory by Federal veterans.

It was raised by the State of Pennsylvania to commemorate the heroic deeds of Gen. John F. Hartman and the third division of the Ninth Army Corps, Army of the Potomac, which he commanded during the siege of Petersburg. This division was composed chiefly of Pennsylvania soldiers. The Ninth, commanded by Gen. Burnside, was the "crack" corps of the Federal army in Virginia, and such confidence was reposed in the leader and the men that it operated for some time independent of the Army of the Potomac.

Enlisted as Colonel.
Gen. Hartman was born in Montgomery, Pa., on December 18, 1839, and was admitted to the bar in his native State in 1859. When the call to arms rent the air in 1861 he entered the Federal army as colonel of the Fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers, which command was brigaded with the Twelfth Regular Infantry and Fifth Massachusetts Militia, the brigade being commanded by Col. W. B. Franklin of the regular army.

At the battle of Vicksburg, where Col. Hartman commanded the Fifty-first Pennsylvania Volunteers in Gen. Fero's division, the Pennsylvania distinguished himself by gallant conduct under fire, and after having temporary command of the first and third divisions of the corps, he was promoted to major general and permanent commander of the last-named division.

Greatest Victory at Fort Steadman.
The most notable battle in which Gen. Hartman and his gallant men figured was at Fort Steadman on March 25, 1895. Here it was that they immortalized themselves, and by converting defeat into victory made themselves subjects of commendatory general orders from Maj. Gen. John G. Parke, who had succeeded Gen. Burnside as commander of the Ninth Corps.

On the morning of March 25 the Confederates led by Gen. John B. Gordon captured Fort Steadman while the Federal forces were still asleep. Gen. Gordon and his 100 picked men entered the fort without the discharge of a gun. At sunrise the daring Confederates, flushed with success, started to capture another fortification in the rear of Port Steadman whose position commanded the garison already carried.

This charge on the part of Gen. Gordon was repulsed by the Ninth Corps, and the Third Division, under the command of Col. Hartman, delivered a counter charge, which resulted in the retaking of Fort Steadman and the capture of several thousand prisoners.

At sunset the Federal line had been re-established and the Third Division filled the breach of 100 yards made by the Confederates before sunrise.

Was Governor of Pennsylvania.
At the close of the war Gen. Hartman returned to Pennsylvania, and was attorney general from 1865 to 1868. He was governor of Pennsylvania from 1872 to 1875, and died October 17, 1889.

On the east and west sides of the monument are inscribed the enlistments, killed, wounded, and prisoners of the six Pennsylvania regiments of infantry which served in Gen. Hartman's division. The names of the places where they fought, bled, and died are marked on the front of the obelisk. Directly in front of the monument stands a Federal soldier of heroic size, done in bronze, and holding a banner and a rifle.

Although the monument is erected at Fort Mahone, the Third Division did little fighting there. On April 3 Gen. Hartman charged Gen. B. Gordon's Confederate line and made a breach, but subsequently was compelled to fall back to his original position.

The erection of the monument at Fort Mahone was made necessary by the inaccessibility of Fort Steadman. Had the contemplated memorial highway been built to connect the two Federal cemeteries near Petersburg the Pennsylvania soldiers could have reared their monument on the spot where Gen. Hartman and his men achieved their greatest triumph.

RULES AGAINST HASKELL.

Government Scores Point in Land Fraud Cases.
Muskegon, Okla., May 8.—The government scored heavily on Gov. Haskell and his associates charged with land frauds when Federal Judge Campbell today overruled the demurrers of the defendants in the Creek Indian land suits.

These suits were brought by the government for the recovery of 2,000 acres and alleged to have been obtained by Gov. Haskell and the other defendants through the scheduling of "dummies."

Out of these six suits grew the criminal prosecution of the governor and his associates. These indictments were quashed at Tulsa recently, but another grand jury has been called to meet in that city next Monday to investigate the charges.

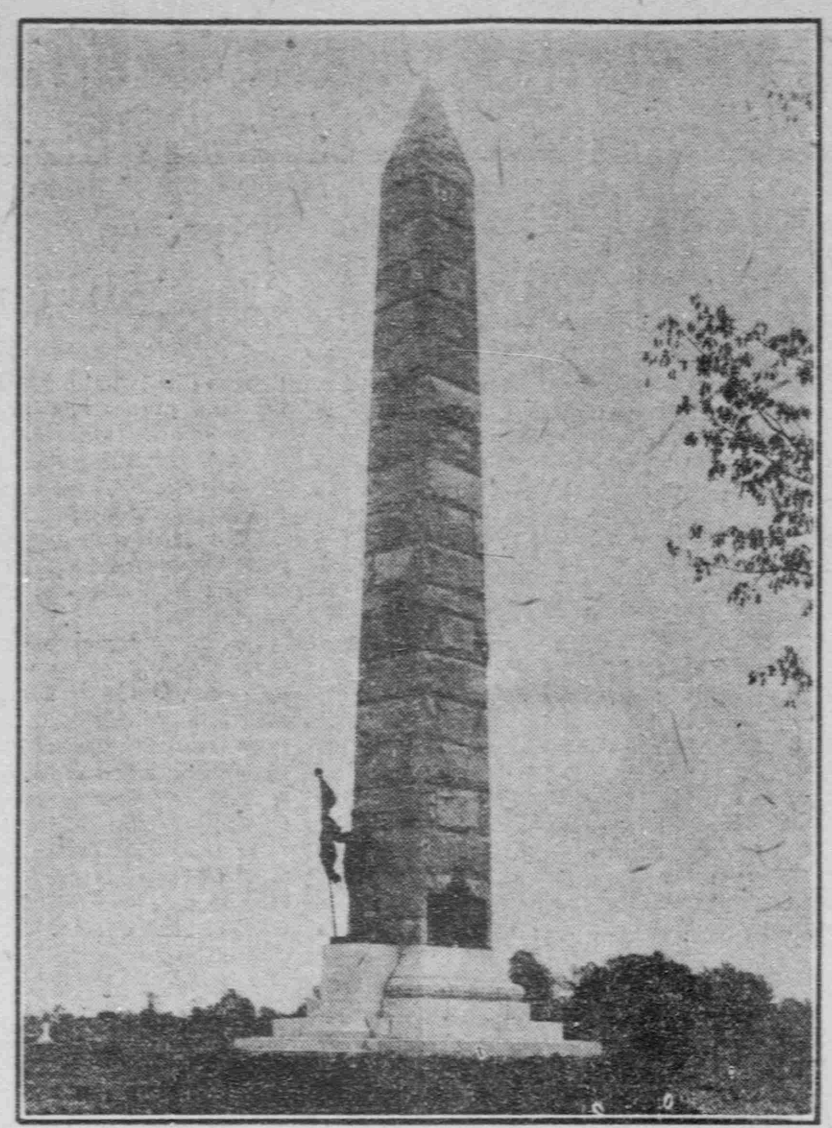

"Shiny" Fat Folks.

One of the fat woman's chief griefs in life is her shiny, greasy skin. It is a plump, fleshy, and it is probably (or may be), her cup of anguish is full. Powder and cosmetics simply hide these horrors for a season—a very short season. They are not a cure for them. They don't cure them for them except getting rid of the grease beneath. When she does that she finds her complexion improves.

In this way only can I account for the clear, natural complexion acquired by those who use the Marmola receipt: O. S. half ounce of Marmola, 1/2 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 1/2 ounce Peppermint Water. By causing the exuded flesh to be absorbed, it clears the blood of the globules of fat which physicians say, cause the greasy, oily skin of the overfat.

This simple receipt makes a mixture both pleasant and harmless. It causes neither wrinkles nor stomach disturbances. It is also quite inexpensive. Make it a point to try some. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime for a week or two and see if your oily skin does not quickly disappear. As you lose your fat your complexion should progressively improve, and after a month or so, when you have lost twenty-five or thirty pounds of flesh, it should be nearly perfect.

COL. CHARLES E. TRAIL DEAD

Minister Wu Embarrassed

Prominent Marylander and Leading Lawyer of Frederick.

Connected with Family of James Russell Lowell—Large Landowner.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Frederick, Md., May 8.—Col. Charles E. Trail, one of Frederick's most prominent residents, died at his home here shortly before 11 o'clock this morning of a complication of troubles, aged eighty-four years.

Col. Trail was taken ill with acute indigestion in November last, but recovered, and, subsequently, was repeatedly at the office of the Mutual Insurance Company, of Frederick County, of which he was president, but about a month ago he again failed again, and he had since been confined to his home.

Col. Trail was born in Frederick January 28, 1825. He was of Scotch descent, his ancestors in this country having been among the early settlers of Massachusetts. One of them, Mary Trail, was the grandmother of James Russell Lowell.

Col. Trail, after a classical education at the Frederick Academy, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1850, but a few years later was forced by ill health to give up his profession. He devoted his attention to his farm and his financial interests. He was one of the largest landowners in the county, owning eight farms, comprising about 2,000 acres of land in Frederick, Urbana, and Buckeystown districts.

Upon the outbreak of the civil war Col. Trail came into prominence as one of the leading Unionists in Frederick County.

In 1860 Col. Trail was elected to the Maryland house of delegates, and in 1865 to the State senate. Subsequently Col. Trail served as president of the board of aldermen of Frederick. He was chairman of the committee which erected the Maryland School for the Deaf in Frederick.

From 1878 to 1882 Col. Trail was president of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, of which his son, Charles B. Trail, is now president. He was for many years president of the Frederick and Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and for over thirty years was president of the board of trustees of the Frederick Female Seminary. He was a vestryman of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church.

Col. Trail's wife, who was a daughter of Col. John H. McElfresh, died in January, 1892, at Marseilles, France, where she was visiting her son, Charles B. Trail, then United States consul at that place. He is survived by the following children: Mrs. Alfred M. Bell, Misses Florence and Bertha Trail, Charles B. Trail, and Arthur Trail, all of Frederick, and Mrs. Anna M. Harding, wife of Rev. John B. Harding, of Philadelphia.

REMSEN DEPLORES COLLEGE BEGGING

Extravagant University Management Should Halt.

TOO MUCH MONEY IN BUILDINGS

Johns Hopkins' President Says Higher Education Suffers for Costly Structures—Alumni Association of Virginia Meets at Charlottesville and Elects Officers—Educators Speak.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Charlottesville, Va., May 8.—Last night, at the Colonnade Club of the university, the Johns Hopkins University Alumni Association of Virginia held its fourth annual meeting. Dr. Hall Connor, president of the association, presided at the dinner at the Commons and introduced the speakers.

Prof. W. M. Thornton, dean of the engineering school of the university, welcomed the visiting Hopkins men in fitting terms, and Arthur Hancock, of Ellerslie, replied to the welcome very appropriately.

Dr. Douglas Vandervoort spoke on Hopkins and medicine. He showed what a debt medical science in this country owed to Hopkins. Dr. J. H. Latane, in discussing Hopkins men in the South, said that there was hardly a college of any standing that did not have one or more Hopkins men in its faculty, and that they were well represented in other lines of endeavor also.

Dr. J. W. Mallet spoke on Hopkins and science. He said that Hopkins was the first American educational institution to make investigation and original research a prominent feature in its course of instruction.

Tendency to Extravagance.
Dr. Ira Remsen, president of Johns Hopkins, was then called upon. He referred to the pleasant relations that existed between Virginia and Johns Hopkins, which began years ago, when Prof. Gillespie was appointed professor of Greek and Prof. Mallet lectured on industrial chemistry.

Dr. Remsen said he did not wish to underrate the importance of the material progress of a university, but he did wish to say that, in his opinion, there is at this time a deplorable tendency to extravagance in the management of universities. Much more money is being spent on material things than is necessary, and the cause of higher education is suffering in consequence. Certain expensive equipments are essential, but the plan is being set in the case of buildings that is likely to react disastrously. Million-dollar laboratories and libraries are a very well, he said, but how far it is wise to put so much in buildings and then allow the occupants to languish for the necessities of intellectual life, is a question that it is not difficult to answer.

Praises Alderman's Stand.
The speaker then continued: "In some quarters abundant money has been furnished for the material needs of the universities, and perhaps for the intellectual needs. The magnificence of the result has stirred the authorities in other quarters to try to follow suit, and a great burden has been placed upon those charged with the conduct of affairs. They have been obliged to bestir themselves in unwonted ways to secure money. The begging college president has been evolved. Pity him, my friends. The remarks recently made on this subject by President Alderman were straight to my heart. I approve of every word he said. A college president cannot do the higher work of his university if he is obliged to go out into the world and beg for the means of support. He ought not to be asked or expected to do this. W. W. Magruder, of Richmond, secretary-treasurer.

This was the most largely attended meeting the Virginia chapter has held, and all enjoyed themselves greatly and expressed a desire to attend next year.

The invited guests of the association were President Remsen, of Johns Hopkins University; Dr. J. W. Mallet, Prof. W. M. Thornton, Prof. H. Heath Dabney, Prof. William Minor Lile, Prof. Richard H. Whitehead, and Prof. W. W. Humphreys, of the University of Virginia; Senator Thomas S. Martin, W. W. Fuller, of New York; Eppa Hunton, of Richmond, and Prof. W. H. Faulkner and F. W. Whitl, of the University of Virginia.

Lexington, Ky., May 8.—Two men who went to-day to Shelby County from Louisville to inspect the site of the proposed $300,000 Lincoln Institute for Negroes received a bundle of switches and a hemp rope, together with a warning.

There has been much objection from people in that section to having the negro school located there, although it has been stipulated that students will be kept on their own reservation, and that they will have their own railroad station and post-office.

Night riders have warned negroes employed at Benson, near Frankfort, to leave in forty-eight hours. Detectives are at work on the case. The negroes at Benson have appealed to Adj. Gen. Johnson, who guarantees them protection.

"MACHINE" VOTE IS DIVIDED.
Richmond Officeholders Not Solid for Judge Mann.

"Organization" Leaders Cannot Hold Rank and File for Candidate They Are Supporting.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Richmond, Va., May 8.—The most interesting phase of the political campaign now in progress for the Democratic nomination for governor of Virginia is the noticeable defection in the ranks of what is known as the "organization." Judge William Hodges Mann, who is known to have the support of the "Democratic machine," the wires of which are crisscrossed in Washington, is by no means as certain now as he was some weeks ago of securing the solid vote of "organization" rank and file.

The writer visited the city hall and the capitol building and State library, where are located the offices of both State and municipal officials, to ascertain how they were lining up for the two gubernatorial candidates.

The city officials are generally found riding in the band wagon, but upon this visit the following condition was found to exist:

Of six judges in the city hall five will support Tucker. In the gas department few Mann adherents could be found. In the water department out of a total of eleven employees only two will cast their ballot for the Nottoway candidate. In the engineering department the majority of the office force will support Tucker.

The police department, including 125 patrolmen, will turn out a good Tucker contingent. The fire department cannot be so easily gauged, but from those who should know it is learned that Tucker is the choice of a majority. Unofficially, the city council is known to be pro-Tucker.

In marked contrast to the frankness with which the city officials tell their favorite in the race is the reticence offered at the State buildings. Of course, there are many Mann advocates among the plum-holders. This is to be expected, but what is not to be expected and what is, therefore, surprising is that notwithstanding the fact that it is generally understood that the city officials are "organization" men, a big majority of them absolutely refuse to state which candidate they will support.

It seems to be that while those serving the State on salaries feel that they are entitled to support the "organization" candidate, they are by no means enthusiastic.

WILL STUDY AIR STRATAS.

Prof. Todd Expects Later to Learn More About Planets.

Canton, Ohio, May 8.—Scientific balloons ascension planned by Prof. David Todd, of Amherst College, which are to determine to a scientific accuracy the make-up of the atmosphere at great heights, will take place here this summer.

The experiment with wireless which Prof. Todd has planned will also take place during the Canton test flights. GETS FULL POWERS
Sword of Ottoman Goes to Mehmed V To-morrow.

Constantinople, May 8.—Mehmed V will rule in full power on Monday.

On that day, it was decided to-night, the ceremony of girding on the sword of Ottoman would be carried out in ancient form, with all the ceremony that usually accompanies the investing with the crown of monarchs of other nations.

The grand shiek of Nevvise Dede, Abdul Malim Effendi, is in Constantinople to-night, and it is he who had the last word as to the arrangements. Mehmed V will leave the palace before noon mounted on the most magnificent Arab steed that the royal palace stables afford.

He will be escorted by a well armed and equipped retinue, among whom will be the leaders of the Young Turk movement. In the train of the monarch will be all of the dignitaries of church and state, and the procession will pass between double rows of armed soldiers to the Eyoub Mosque.

There in the presence of the selected company the time-honored sword will be bound to the side of the new ruler and he will be acclaimed commander of the faithful.

ANGERED BY BISHOP.
Wealthy Atlanta Woman Withdraws Gift to Church.

Atlanta, May 8.—Angered by the Right Rev. C. K. Nelson, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Atlanta, Mrs. W. H. Smyth, a wealthy woman, and widow of a former postmaster of Atlanta, has revoked a deed by which one of the handsomest houses on Peachtree street was to go to the diocese at her death for a bishop's residence.

The property is worth $100,000. Mrs. Smyth is a devout church woman without children, and she intended to leave nearly everything to the church, but something Bishop Nelson said angered her, and she at once revoked the bequest.

Bishop Nelson is not disposed to lose the property, and he has written Mrs. Smyth, threatening legal proceedings. Lawyers, however, say the bishop has no grounds for action. Mrs. Smyth said not just what the bishop said, but she says her cause for action is sufficient.

HAS SOIL LIKE NORFOLK'S.
Savannah Is in Position to Compete in Extensive Trucking.

Dr. J. A. Bonsteel, of the Bureau of Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, has just returned to Washington from an extended tour of the South, which was for the purpose of investigating the adaptability of different types of soils for certain kinds of crops, especially winter and early spring vegetables.

Dr. Bonsteel is enthusiastic over the results of his trip, and is preparing a special report. When seen Dr. Bonsteel said:

"The first trip was to the city of Savannah, in order to investigate the possibility of developing the land of Chatham County for an extensive trucking industry. I found there the same types of soil which have made Norfolk, Va.; New Bern and Wilmington, N. C., and Charleston, S. C., famous centers for the production of a great variety of winter and early spring truck crops. All of the lower lying land in the vicinity of Savannah is so situated that artesian water in large quantities is easily obtainable, and could be used on soils of the Portsmouth series for the irrigation of celery. This one fact will enable truck growers in the vicinity of Savannah to compete favorably with the Florida celery growers in the production of this important and valuable truck crop.

"From Savannah I went to Barnesville and Pike County, Ga., where the peach industry is developing, and also saw the peach groves and nurseries which have been started. Contrary to the usual belief that peach culture is practically confined to the coast section of the United States, I found that excellent results and early maturity of trees were obtained on the Cecil sandy loam near Barnesville."

Will Move Modjeska's Body.
Berlin, May 8.—A committee has been formed at Cracow to bring the body of Mme. Modjeska from California to Cracow for burial there. She was long a member of the Municipal Theater
